

Hallam college wins training award

HALLAM Senior College has taken out a 2009 State Government Victorian Training Award.

The school received the VET Schools Excellence Award for its on-site Trades Training Centre.

Victorian Automobile Chamber of Commerce is helping the school develop the centre through the development and management of the training programs. Holden has donated $100,000 worth of engines, parts and supplies.

School principal Anne Martin said the school was serious about the delivery of training packages that were close to industry standards. "The award acknowledges that we are one of the top schools in the state for Vocational Education Training," Ms Martin said.

Minister for Skills and Workforce Participation, Jacinta Allan, presented the award recognising the achievements of students, teachers, training providers and employers leading the way in skills development.
